We explore the origin of the rites and discover the beauty of stewardship of the time to come and the Great Principles. Dean Taraborelli has traveled to sacred sites in over 30 countries to study and experience the wisdom of ancient cultures. Afternoon and evenings, we meet with our jungle shaman who guides us with his songs into the world of spirit. Music composed and played by Sue Hoadley. Teaching agreement required. Find your own unique handmade rattle from Peru, or a beautiful mestana handwoven by the descendants of the Inka plus so much more: ponchos, Inka crosses, Four Winds jackets, hats, and tote bags. "WOW. You learn the arts of the medical intuitive-how to read inside a person's body to examine organs, systems, tissues, and to diagnose spiritual disease. Embark on an adventure of the soul; luxuriate in native hot springs; and open your heart beyond your frontiers of awareness. cover illustration: © Susan Seddon Boulet Trust design by: Dustin Neece photography by: Isabel Vedol, Izabela Berengut, Wake Wheeler, Vance Holmes, Bill Leyden, Ed McCulloch, Christine, Paul, Marcela Lobos, John Weiskopf, Matt Morrissey and Holy Rose Copyright © 2000-2011 The Four Winds Society. All Rights Reserved Schools We help bring warm clothing and school supplies to the indigenous communities near Mt. Ausangate and Mt. Pachatusan. In addition to hiring our shamans we also offer economic and clothing assistance to their villages and schools. We felt the angel of death brush our shoulder as he passed. Please consult your doctor or mental health professional for these services. Later, we ascend to Saikantay Lagoon at 15,750 feet for the high mountain rites. We hike to the Blue Lagoon and camp at 1,000 feet at the snow-capped glacier where we experience the spiritual lineage of the Earthkeepers. Our first day of hiking we camp at Ichupampa and observe avalanches on Salkantay's ice-covered walls. Through the course, the wisdom of the spiritual world will be made accessible to you with the help of oracles and symbols and hidden possibilities will be revealed. We visit the ancient towns of Sillustani, the burial ground of kings, queens, and explore the floating islands of the Uru people. Mind, body and spirit are seamlessly integrated in his current healing practice of Transformational Medicine.
